

Aging Together's Regional Resource Guide for Older Adults
Advertisement Opportunities 3rd edition, 2024 (closes 6/1/24)

Aging Together is publishing the 3rd edition of the “Regional Resource Guide for Older Adults” with intent to go to print in the fall of 2024 (approximate publish time being August/September). The first and second edition publications were positively welcomed by hundreds of older adults, caregivers and family as the first of its kind in our 5-county region (Culpeper, Fauquier, Madison, Orange & Rappahannock). This free guide offers comprehensive listings of important resources and services and supports opportunities for positive aging. Along with categorized directory listings with complete contact information, we include relevant information pieces highlighting questions that are frequently asked on Aging Together’s information line. This will continue to be an essential guide for older adults in our region.

We are now taking orders for advertisements in the 3rd edition of the Resource Guide. Because of its wide-ranging content and repeat publication every one to two years, it will have an extended shelf life and has already been proven to have high readership potential. 7500 printed copies of the 2nd edition were distributed in the year after publication. The Guide continues to be available as a free download on Aging Together’s website. This will be a great opportunity to highlight your organization to a rapidly growing demographic of older adults, as well as their families, caregivers, and professionals.

If you are interested in advertising or would like to place your order, please go to Aging Together’s website (www.agingtogether.org). The Resource Guide info is accessible through a button on the Home Page. For questions, contact Caroline Smeltz (csmeltz@agingtogether.org) or call 540-829-6405.

(The 2nd Edition Resource Guide is available to view on Aging Together’s website.)
